Letter from the President

Dear CDH Community:

The last twenty-four years at Cretin-Derham Hall have truly been remarkable for me, both personally and professionally. My family and I have enjoyed every minute as members of this wonderful community, and I am deeply grateful for the gift that CDH is to us. Thank you!

After considerable discernment, my wife, Bridget, and I have concluded it is time to move into the next stage of our lives. Therefore, I recently informed the Board of Directors that I will be retiring effective June 30, 2015. I have chosen to inform the entire community at this time, so as to allow for an effective and thorough transition prior to June 2015.

After nearly a quarter of a century of service to CDH, this was not an easy decision for me. I love this school and the thousands of students, parents, alums, and friends I have encountered over the years. Retirement will allow Bridget and me to spend more time with each other, our family, and especially our four grandchildren. We are looking forward to this time with great anticipation.

I have had the privilege to lead a team that has worked tirelessly to improve all aspects of this fine school for more than two decades. Today, Cretin-Derham Hall is a very strong school in all aspects. Academically, we offer an outstanding curriculum and academic excellence to students of all abilities and learning styles. As a Catholic school we remain faithful to the Gospel challenge to seek personal conversion and to work for justice and transformation of our world. All students are provided opportunities to deepen their faith, as well as serve our community and the Church. Together, we have developed an award-winning fine arts curriculum and program that is truly exceptional. And, our co-curricular and athletic programs are outstanding and offer something for every interest a student might want to explore. Truly, there is a place for everyone at CDH.

Financially, the school is on a very strong footing. This financial strength will be secured even further through the Lord, the Work is Yours! student endowment campaign. The campaign is scheduled to be completed in conjunction with my retirement. I am certain that we will surpass our stretch goal for this campaign in true CDH fashion! Additionally, our capital endowment is in place to address any future facility needs.

I am confident that I will be leaving CDH in the hands of talented and dedicated faculty and staff members who are truly committed to the success of every student. CDH enjoys a fine reputation both locally and regionally. Our daily work and ongoing strategic planning assure that this will continue for many years to come. We will continue to strive to achieve each of the seven values, thus carrying on the charisms of our sponsors and owners, the Brothers of the Christian Schools and the Sisters of St. Joseph of Carondelet.

Please allow me to extend my deepest appreciation and gratitude for your friendship and support. Without your generous support, none of this would have been possible.

Merry Christmas and Happy New Year,

Richard R. Engler
President

Letter from the Board of Directors

Dear CDH Community:

Over the past 24 years I have had the pleasure of getting to know Dick Engler in many capacities: first as a student at Cretin- Derham Hall, then as a proud alum, then as a parent of a CDH student, and now as Chair of the CDH Board of Directors. This community has been blessed to have his leadership and vision that have made CDH the amazing school that it is today.

Dick has announced that he plans to retire as President of Cretin-Derham Hall in June of 2015. Dick and his wife, Bridget, look forward to the next chapter in their lives and plan to relax and enjoy as much time as possible with their four grandchildren.

Arriving just three years after the merger of Cretin and Derham Hall, Dick demonstrated a remarkable ability to capture the rich traditions and values of our two sponsors, the Brothers of the Christian Schools and the Sisters of St. Joseph of Carondelet. Reflecting on Dick's career as President, his accomplishments are amazing. Here are just a few of the outstanding accomplishments under his leadership:

- Enrollment increased from 990 students to 1315 students while maintaining the same average class size.
- The diversity of the student body increased from 9% to 22%.
- Advanced Placement courses increased from just one in 1992 to 10 in 2013. During that same time, the number of students taking AP exams increased from 28 to 321. Eighty percent of the students who took AP exams in 2013 earned college credit.
- CDH students enrolling in college increased from 82% to 97%.
- The student and capital endowments increased from $1.1 million to $30 million.
- More than 50 co-curricular activities are available, and 85 % of students participate.
- The square footage of the facilities has risen from 206,000 to 323,000.

As the CDH community looks to the future, we are thrilled to have Dick play an active role in the transition process. The CDH Board of Directors has developed a Transition Committee that will be led by Teri McCloughan, past Board Chair.

We celebrate the successes of Cretin-Derham Hall under Dick's leadership. Please join me in wishing Dick and Bridget all the best as they embark on this new chapter in their lives.

Sincerely,

Kevin Dolan '91

Letter from the Chaplain

My first recollection of “doing good” for someone I did not know goes back to early grade school. I accompanied my Dad across town to deliver a Thanksgiving basket to a family whose name I have never forgotten and whom I have never known. Obviously, it was an experience that made a deep impression on me as a young child.

Years later, with many similar experiences under my belt, I was in a position to invite two high school students to go to Guatemala with me. We lived among, worked with, and generally were moved—mind and heart—by the simple but profoundly Christian manner of the people there.

We received more than we gave. The two teenagers on this trip eventually chose lifetime careers of service. Decades later, when, as pastor of St. Olaf in downtown Minneapolis, I invited five young adult professionals to accompany me to Africa. Of the five who made this trip, two changed their professions and became medical doctors. On a subsequent trip led by my assistant priest, of the four young adults who accompanied him, two left their careers, entered the seminary and are now serving as priests in our Archdiocese. Life-changing experiences.

Whether at home or abroad, experiences arising out of a desire to make a difference with one's life, or to help others in theirs, can have a lasting effect. Desire is enough to open one's heart to others, but skills that can do the helping may be required as well. I remember the warning words of a missionary priest who ran a training program in Mexico for social justice activists. He drilled into our minds that the developing world does not need “apostolic tourists,” that is, Americans who mean well but who end up being more of a drain on local resources rather than adding to them. A point well taken.

So, it was affirming when eight CDH students who paid their way to Kenya, spent an entire week transferring skills to Kenyan high school students who had never touched a typewriter before much less a computer keyboard. It was a sight to behold: being able to offer life-changing skills and the hope that it created, while at the same time receiving so much from kids their own age. On social justice trips I always felt we received more than we were able to give.

Critical to their success is the openness to learn. One supremely important dimension that a Catholic school (or parish) can offer to social justice education trips is our Catholic Social Justice teaching. The Church's experience around the globe has been distilled into a reservoir of wisdom and principle. It has not come easily and not without suffering and pain. As our justice education trips are able to weave together this wisdom of the ages with the challenges of the present, they can truly make a difference in building a better world. Like charity, justice starts at home. But it need not end there.

Justice Education

Faith in Action

Rob Peick

For nearly 25 years students and teachers at Cretin-Derham Hall have participated in an extensive program of justice education trips. These trips have taken members of our community to destinations as close as the Red Lake Nation/St. Mary's Mission in Red Lake, MN, and as distant as St. Timon's School in Rabondo, Kenya.

The purpose of these trips is twofold: first, to show our students a bigger world, a world which is in almost every case a world of great need. Many students comment that it is one thing to see poverty on TV or in magazines and quite another to see first-hand the harsh conditions many people live in.

The other point we want to drive home is that every one of us has a compelling responsibility to work for a just world in which all of God's people have access to the basic necessities of a decent life.

This concern for educating for justice is based solidly in Catholic social teaching and the teachings of our church leaders. In 1984 Pope John Paul put it this way: "...the needs of the poor take priority over the desires of the rich; the rights of workers over maximization of profits; the preservation of the environment over uncontrolled industrial expansion; production to meet social needs over production for military purposes."

In 1976 the American bishops wrote that "Jesus' example and words require understanding and action upon the broader dimensions of poverty, hunger, and injustice which necessarily involve the institutions and structures of economy, society, and politics." This is precisely the bigger picture we want to address with our students: that Catholics are called upon to work for systemic change which will eliminate gross inequities in our world.

Our justice education trips are many and varied. Most of them incorporate some kind of service element and every one includes education and reflection; most are closely connected to some outreach effort of the Catholic Church.

This program began in the spring of 1989 when Br. Tom Lisack took four students to an orphanage in Jamaica. Our longest running trip is the one to San Lucas Toliman parish in San Lucas Toliman, Guatemala, where St. Paul native Father Greg Schaffer served the indigenous population for nearly fifty years. The first group spent part of the Christmas holiday there in December, 1993; we have sent at least one group of students and teachers every year since.

Another international connection was with our archdiocesan sister parish, Jesucristo Resuscitado in San Felix, Venezuela. This began in 2005 as "Baseball Beyond Borders," a trip for boys only with a chance to play baseball, learn about Venezuelan culture, and do some work around the church. This trip expanded under faculty member Becki Medellin '88 to include both boys and girls.

Making rosaries
Venezuela 2009

One faculty team and two separate student/faculty groups have traveled to St. Timon's church and school in Rabondo, Kenya, in 2006-08. This school was built with funds raised by CDH chaplain, Fr. John Forliti '54, and on the first student trip, we brought a battery of computers, the first time St. Timon's students were afforded access to the worldwide net.

A significant number of students and teachers have gone to El Salvador under the auspices of the SHARE Foundation, a trip which stresses education and cultural understanding. Archbishop Romero is a central figure throughout this country, and he figures prominently in this experience. Students visit the very chapel and stand on the altar where the archbishop was assassinated in 1980. Another piece of this trip is a two-night homestay, in which local villagers open their homes to each of our students. Most students remember these days best, perhaps because of the outhouses, lack of electricity, and roaming farm animals but surely because of the bountiful hospitality they are shown.

As to domestic justice trips, there are also quite a number. Just this past March nine seniors and two faculty members visited the South on a civil rights education trip. The group started in Atlanta, the birthplace and resting place of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., and carried on to Selma, Birmingham, and Montgomery, AL, to places like the Edmund Pettus Bridge, the Birmingham Civil Rights Institute, and the Rosa Parks Museum. Trip participant Cory Kemp '13 said, "One thing that I learned was that two boys also died on the same day of the 16th Street Baptist Church bombing in Birmingham. All in all, the civil rights trip was a great opportunity to learn about the civil rights movement and learn how to do your share today and be involved in the future."

Groups from CDH have also traveled to Mississippi, often for a meeting of the Mississippi Civil Rights Veterans in Jackson, MS, and often in the company of former CDH parent Chuck McDew, who was beaten and arrested many times during the struggles of the 60's.

Another long-standing trip is an immersion at the Red Lake Nation/ St. Mary's Mission in Red Lake, MN. Campus minister Peter Gleich has organized these trips for almost 20 years. This is an opportunity to experience the history, culture, spirituality, and daily life of the Ojibwa people. Of particular significance has been the invitation to our students and adult chaperones to participate in the sweat lodge ceremony with the Ojibwa tribal elders.

Another trip is an urban plunge at the Romero Center in Camden, NJ. Our students stay in the middle of the poorest city in the richest state in the United States. Activities usually include a visit to an inner city school, a home for the elderly, a soup kitchen, and a drop-in center for teenagers with AIDS.

In 1999 four seniors and a faculty member traveled to Columbus, GA, for the vigil calling for the closing of the U.S. Army school formerly known as the School of the Americas. This event has been held annually since 1990 in commemoration of the killing of six Jesuit priests, their housekeeper, and her daughter in San Salvador. The priests had been speaking out on behalf of the poor in El Salvador (following in Archbishop Romero's footsteps) and were murdered by a cadre that included soldiers from the school, which is still in existence.

For several years our program included four days on the border between Mexico and Arizona under the auspices of BorderLinks, a Tucson-based advocacy group; the purpose of this experience is to educate people about immigration issues. Also in the mix over the years have been visits to Su Casa, a Chicago Catholic Worker house which has been a refuge for Central American torture victims and then a home for Hispanic people who are temporarily homeless. The Darst House is a Christian Brothers ministry, also in Chicago; one group did a long weekend urban plunge there in 2004, and we hope to resurrect that trip during the academic year 2013-14.

For the record, some of these trips are still being organized regularly; others have been discontinued for various reasons, and we are always looking for new sites that might suit our purposes.

Farming in Guatemala
Fall 2012

Approximately 1500 students and at least 60 different faculty/staff members have participated in these justice education trips. In addition, about eight faculty members and our principal, Mona Passman, sit on our justice education trip committee, which acts as an advisory and support group for all efforts in this area. Part of this committee's work is to distribute financial aid which President Dick Engler provides annually. There is no question that these experiences cost money, and many of our students cannot afford them. We are acutely conscious of that.

Sometimes people ask whether we could reach the same goals by keeping our travel very local. However, it seems that even in this age of instant internet access and unlimited video exposure, many of our students grow up with a surprising degree of insularity when it comes to awareness of international and national realities. They are surprised and often shocked by much of what they see and hear on these trips. So putting them in a place where they are definitely out of their comfort zone jolts them into a sense of how big the world is and how complicated it can be to work for justice. Furthermore, when they rub shoulders with people on a national and international level, they see how important it is to think globally as we make our journey as Christians in the world.

Also, it is our intent as we reach for the goals outlined above that our young people will see the need in their own communities and respond more readily to that need. I have seen over and over again students return from one of these trips and ask, "What can I do now?" We hope that this leads to a lifetime of involvement. They may sign up to participate in a day with Habitat for Humanity, serve breakfast at the Dorothy Day Center, or pack meals at Feed My Starving Children. They may put together a coat drive or give blood.

On a broader and more important scale, students sometimes come back from these trips with the realization that they have a lifetime ahead of them as responsible citizens. They may be better equipped to contribute to the national debate about issues of war and peace, health care, immigration, and more.

There is another consideration which we need to keep always on our minds. There are some who look at trips like the ones I have described as "poverty tours" which serve only to make the participants feel virtuous for having undertaken them and perhaps delivered a substantial contribution of goods to the people at the destination site.

Father Ivan Illich, the Austrian-born priest/philosopher who spent most of his life in Mexico, made this point best in a 1968 address to the Conference on InterAmerican Student Projects, a U. S. student organization that sent young people to Third World countries to help people. He had little sympathy for "do-gooders." The speech is entitled "To Hell with Good Intentions."

Here's how he ends his speech: "I am here to entreat you to use your money, your status, and your education to travel in Latin America. Come to look, come to climb our mountains, to enjoy our flowers. Come to study. But do not come to help." His message is a sobering reminder that we'd better watch out what we're doing with these trips.

I have told Mr. Engler that it is my dream that every Cretin-Derham Hall student could have the opportunity to participate in one of these trips during his/her time at school. I say this because I believe that these trips are the most effective way to teach young people about the responsibilities of a Christian in today's world. They are the best way to make an impression on young people whose lives thereafter may not be the same.

The Growth of Justice Education at CDH

In 1990, CDH offered just nine justice education opportunities locally and one international trip; 200 students took advantage of these opportunities. This past school year, CDH offered 18 local opportunities and nine international trips; 565 students were able to participate.

Financial aid, although limited, is available based on need, which helps to ensure that all students who wish to take advantage of these opportunities are able to do so.

"Catholic social teaching calls us to act locally and globally to support human dignity," says CDH President Richard Engler. "We are grateful that we are able to provide venues that enable our students to gain a deeper understanding of their world and put their faith into action."

Dedication Ceremonies

WHALEY HALL IS DEDICATED

On May 30, 2013, Whaley Hall was dedicated on the campus of Cretin-Derham Hall to recognize the extraordinary philanthropy of John '70 and Annette Mortinson Whaley '71. Three generations of Whaleys have graduated from Cretin, Derham Hall and now Cretin-Derham Hall. The Whaleys are committed to furthering the values and mission of the school. In 2004, Annette was awarded the Hugh Derham Award from the Derham Hall Alumnae Association for her loyal service through work aimed at bettering the school, its objectives and ideals. In 2011, John and Annette received the Monsignor V. Ambrose Hayden Legacy Award given in recognition of individuals whose spirit and energy reflect an understanding of the need to preserve the past and provide for future generations. The Whaley Foundation, founded by John and Annette, engages their three daughters, (l to r) Megan '00, Lauren '03, and Caitlin '06, in philanthropic endeavors as well.

Gene and Mary Frey paused for a photo in front of Frey Hall with Father Dennis Dease (l) and Father John Malone.

Frey Hall

FREY HALL IS DEDICATED

On August 15, 2013, Frey Hall was dedicated on the campus of Cretin-Derham Hall. The building, formerly known as the 1928 academic building, faces Hamline Avenue and was named in honor of Eugene '48 and Mary Frost Frey '52. The Freys are known for their exemplary philanthropic support of Catholic education, and their deep and abiding faith has been a driving force in their support of the mission and values of Cretin-Derham Hall. The Frey Foundation, which includes participation from their entire family—from children to grandchildren—supports education, human services, and disability concerns. To recognize and honor the Frey's transformational philanthropic support, the 1928 academic building was named Frey Hall in their honor.

Janet Albers (r) and her daughter, Jennifer Harmening, were joined by President Dick Engler at the formal dedication ceremony.

JOHN ALBERS CENTER IS DEDICATED

John '49* and Janet Albers are well known for their exemplary philanthropic support of Catholic education, especially Cretin-Derham Hall. The virtue of generosity embodied by the Albers reflects what they learned at home from their parents. "My father believed that if you have sufficient funds on which to live," said John, "you are obligated to give something back.

The Albers' interest in Catholic education led them to fund the construction of the Commons, Link area, Library Media Center, and science labs on the Cretin-Derham Hall campus. The John R. Albers Center is named in honor of the family's transformational philanthropic support. The facility was formally dedicated on September 15, 2013.

*John Albers died on October 9, 2008. May he rest in peace, and may perpetual light shine upon him.

SUNBERG LEADERSHIP CENTER IS DEDICATED

After raising their children and enjoying many successful years in business, Frank '60 and Judy Sunberg decided to spend their retirement years giving back to the community. Frank immersed himself in volunteer leadership positions at CDH, the University of St. Thomas, and a number of other local nonprofits. He was honored in 2002 with the Bishop Joseph Cretin Distinguished Alumnus Award for exemplary service to Cretin-Derham Hall.

In 2011, Frank and Judy agreed to be the honorary co-chairs of the Lord, the Work is Yours! Endowment Campaign. Sadly, Judy passed away in August 2012. Judy was a strong and quiet leader, guiding her husband and family with both grace and style. She is deeply missed by her entire family and the CDH community.

To honor Judy's memory and the couple's years of philanthropic support to CDH, the Christian Brothers' Residence has been named the Sunberg Leadership Center. The formal dedication was held on December 9, 2013.

Heidi and Mark Wingerd were accompanied to the dedication by their children, (l to r) Jack, Andy, and Matthew.

WINGERD FIELD IS DEDICATED

Mark and Heidi Anderson Wingerd have been loyal supporters since they graduated from the final Cretin and Derham Hall High School classes in 1987. The Wingerds have been active volunteers in numerous local organizations, most notably Cretin-Derham Hall, Nativity of Our Lord Parish and School, the Catholic Athletic Association, and Saint Paul area youth athletics. Their love of the church and its educational mission has been a driving force behind their dedicated work to advance the mission and values of Cretin-Derham Hall, as well as many other charitable causes. The Wingerds' keen interest and dedication to youth athletics are passions shared by the entire family. To recognize and honor their transformational support, Wingerd Field is named in their honor and was dedicated on November 6, 2013. Following the dedication, guests enjoyed burgers and bowling at The Nook.

Cretin Alumni Banquet 2013

The 117th Annual Cretin Alumni Banquet was held on September 19, 2013, in the Field House at Cretin-Derham Hall. Dr. John Tauer '91 was the featured speaker. Festivities included the induction of Terry Cummings '58 into the Cretin High School Athletic Hall of Fame.

Observing their 50-year reunion were Bob O'Malley, John Runyon, Gary Pates and Steve Nachtsheim, all from the Class of 1963.

Celebrating their 40-year anniversary reunion were Mike McQuillan, John Schuster and Dave Chandler, all from the Class of 1973.

Cleary Sworn in at Cretin-Derham Hall

Judge Edward J. Cleary '70 was sworn in as chief judge of the Minnesota Court of Appeals during a ceremony held at Cretin-Derham Hall on November 4, 2013. Judge Cleary opted to have the investiture ceremony at CDH so as to recognize the tremendous influence his alma mater has had on him, both personally and professionally.

Judge Cleary is the seventh chief judge appointed to the Court of Appeals since it began in 1983. Governor Mark Dayton announced his appointment as chief judge in September.

The investiture ceremony served as an educational opportunity for students at Cretin-Derham Hall. More than 100 students were in attendance, in addition to 22 justices from the Minnesota Court of Appeals and the Minnesota Supreme Court. Speakers included Judge Cleary and law clerks Lance Bonner '06 and Elizabeth Shields Keating '95, pictured above. They addressed various topics, including the Minnesota Judicial Branch and the legal profession in general, and they took questions from students in the audience.

THE ANNUAL BR. MARTEL FALL CLEAN-UP DAY

The Annual Br. Martel Fall Clean-up, sponsored by the Cretin-Derham Hall Alumni/ae Association, was held on November 2, 2013. Dozens of current CDH students and alumni/ae fanned out across the Mac/Groveland and Highland neighborhoods assisting people with their fall clean-up chores. The entire group met back at CDH later that day for pizza. A big thank you to the CDH Alumni/ae Association Board and the CDH Student Council for making this annual event so successful!

Guests at the Torch Society event included
Erin Lee Muckerheide '98 and her husband, Mark.

Torch Society Hosts Inaugural Event

The inaugural Cretin-Derham Hall Torch Society event was held on November 21, 2013, in the newly-renovated Christian Brothers' Residence. The event included a social hour, blessing, and panel discussion on the future of Catholic education, including presentations by CDH President Dick Engler; John McMahon, former interim superintendent of Catholic schools for the Archdiocese of St. Paul and Minneapolis; and Kate Wollan, Principal at Nativity of Our Lord Grade School.

The mission of the Torch Society is to generate enthusiasm, involvement, and support from a new generation of leaders. The baton must be passed to those in our community who are assuming the mantle of leadership to nurture and sustain the academic, spiritual, and co-curricular opportunities that make CDH such an outstanding school. Membership is based on engagement in the community and a history of consecutive giving. Jenifer Thibodeau LeClair '69

Easy Reading, Hard Writing

Jenifer Thibodeau LeClair '69 was hooked on sailing the very first time she boarded a sailboat at age 12. In time, she would become an accomplished sailor. She would go on to sail on the Maine Windjammers and would blend her experiences on the high seas with her considerable talent as a writer, penning a series of award-winning adventure/mystery thrillers with a nautical backdrop.

The first book in her Windjammer Mystery Series, Rigged for Murder, debuted in 2008, and Danger Sector followed in 2011. Cold Coast, published in July 2013, is the most recent addition. The books, which have attracted a faithful fan base, are particularly popular in the Northeast for their historical and maritime authenticity, but readers don't need to be interested in sailing or the sea to appreciate these whodunits.

The heroine in the series is a female homicide detective, Brie Beaumont, who is on medical leave from the Minneapolis Police Department. Beaumont is grappling with post-traumatic stress disorder following an incident while on duty that left her with severe injuries and her partner dead. Haunted by her experiences, she travels to the East Coast for an extended sailing excursion, including visits to coastal islands that dot the Gulf of Maine. But the serenity of her trip is short-lived when homicide victims start turning up, and she must use her skills as a detective to flush out the guilty party from among an intriguing cast of characters.

LeClair's books have been favorably reviewed by readers and critics alike and have garnered a number of book awards. Rigged for Murder and Danger Sector each have won Independent Publishers Awards for Best Regional Fiction for the U.S. Northeast. Rigged for Murder won the 2009 Rebecca's Reads Award for Best Mystery/Thriller, and Danger Sector was a finalist in the 2012 Midwest Book Awards for Best Mystery/Thriller.

Many alumnae will remember LeClair's mother, Derham Hall English teacher Lynn Thibodeau, who died in 2007. She encouraged her daughter's writing, but also provided some cautionary words of advice. "One of my mom's favorite sayings was, 'Easy reading, hard writing,'" says LeClair, acknowledging that in order to give the reader a nice journey, the writer must be self-disciplined and work hard at the craft. But, she says, writing has become "as natural to me as breathing."

As challenging as writing is, LeClair, a 1973 graduate of Trinity College with a degree in English literature, embraces the process. "I love the sense of timelessness one experiences when deep in writing," she says, adding that frequently she has to step back and let her characters decide how the plot will evolve. "I don't want to sound too metaphysical here," she says, "but sometimes one of the characters or the storyline itself will decide to take an unexpected turn. I find, when I am stopped, that I need to humbly get out of the way and wait for something to be revealed within the framework of the story."

She owns her own sailboat and has been sailing locally on White Bear Lake since the '70's, but it's sailing along the East Coast that has captured both her heart and her imagination. She visits the area frequently, particularly the Gulf of Maine. Once, she was caught in a gale off the coast of New Brunswick as a passenger on a schooner that she sails frequently out of Rockland, Maine. "Due to the competence of the captain and the seaworthiness of the schooner, we weathered the experience," she says. "It was a thrilling ride and one I've since captured in my writing."

She lives with her husband, Craig Granse, in Vadnais Heights, MN, and has two adult children. In her spare time she enjoys reading (Agatha Christie is one of her favorite authors), cooking, hiking, star-gazing, and, of course, sailing. She is already hard at work on her fourth novel, although her progress has been hindered by recent knee surgery, which has also made her demanding book tour schedule more daunting.

LeClair has some simple words of advice for aspiring authors: "Write, write, write," she says. "Love writing for the joy it brings with no thought of making money. If you're good enough, that will come later."

Trying Harder

Tom Gartland '75 is president, Avis Budget Group North America, which includes the company's U.S. and Canadian operations of the Avis, Budget, and Zipcar brands. He oversees 5,000 Avis, Budget, and Budget Truck Rental locations, including 22,000 employees. Tom spent 14 years with JohnsonDiversey as president of Johnson's North American region and an additional 14 years at Ecolab, where he served as vice president and director of national accounts. He is a graduate of the University of St. Thomas, and lives in Denville, NJ, with his wife, Barb. The couple has graciously supported tuition assistance for students at Cretin-Derham Hall. Traditions caught up with Tom for the following Q & A.

Traditions: Did you have a favorite teacher at Cretin High School?

Tom Gartland: I have very fond memories of my teachers while at Cretin, but would have to say Len Horyza was my favorite. He was a great teacher but even more of an influence on me and my family. After my father (Melvin Gartland '44) died while I was a junior at Cretin, Len stepped in and provided advice to me in many areas. I will always be grateful.

T: What are some of your favorite memories from your high school days?

TG: I loved the camaraderie of my fellow classmates. I loved the pride we all had—and still have—in our school. I loved JROTC and our sports programs, as well.

T: Was there a seminal moment that positively impacted the course of your career?

TG: The opportunity to go to work for Ecolab was a turning point for me. Great company, great training, and great leaders who really propelled my career. I would also say the work ethic and pride instilled within me while at Cretin was very critical in my development and success.

T: Who has been the most influential person in your life professionally? Personally?

TG: Professionally, I had the privilege of working with a man named Jim McCarty while I worked for Ecolab. To this day he has had the most influence on my career. He is now retired but one heck of a leader!

Personally, it is my father. As I said, he died when I was 16, and every day of my life I ask myself, 'Would he be proud of the man I have become?' I am still working on the answer! After my father, two of his best friends, Dr. Tom Votel (Cretin Class of 1944) and Red Roberts, are still very much a part of my life, and, because of their friendship with my father, they still care about me and my family. My dad was sure blessed to have had such wonderful friends. Lastly—and most importantly—my wife of 36 years, who is my best friend and biggest supporter.

T: What have been the biggest professional challenges at Avis?

TG: Motivating 22,000 people and helping to change our culture. I have three overarching principals that guide me:

1. Family first ! Both personally and as a work family. Treating every person with dignity and respect. Caring about each other. Working together as a family.
2. Do the right thing! Honesty and integrity are the most important elements of a person, and I believe these are essential in business to succeed.
3. Winning! There is nothing like setting a goal and meeting or exceeding that goal. Winning isn't everything if you don't live by rules 1 and 2.

T: Where do you see yourself in 10 years?

TG: Home in Minnesota and at the lake with our family and grandchildren.

T: What do you do in your spare time?

TG: Golf, read, hunt, workout, and recently I have taken up boxing.

T: What advice would offer to aspiring businessmen and businesswomen?

TG: There are many smart people in this world. Work hard and surround yourself with diverse, smart, honest talent who want to win and are willing to work hard to achieve.

T: OK, we have to ask. Does Avis really try harder??

TG: "We Try Harder" is a marketing slogan that has been very effective for Avis for more than 50 years. For the last two years, we have been communicating to our team members the idea of "ownership." Every person in our community is empowered to solve customer issues on the spot and "Own the Customer Experience." So, we more than try harder. Our people Own It!

Alumni/ae Profile

Nicole Cylkowski '03
with her mentor, Oprah Winfrey

In her OWN words

Following her graduation from the University of Wisconsin and armed with a degree in broadcast journalism, Nicole Cylkowski '03, daughter of Michele and Greg Cylkowski '74, headed for Chicago, Illinois, where she landed a job as the audience coordinator for the Oprah Winfrey Show. She is now in her 4th year with Harpo Studios, and is doing her part to help establish OWN (the Oprah Winfrey Network) as a premier cable network. Traditions caught up with her to discuss some of her experiences as a student at CDH, working with the iconic Winfrey, living in Chicago, and her work in television. The following are excerpts from that discussion—in her own words:

My favorite teacher at CDH was Sheila Malone-Povolny. I took her English literature class my sophomore year, and I was doing terribly. I thought it would be the first class I would fail. She gave me unconditional support and a belief that I could dig myself out of the hole I had gotten myself into. I think I ended up with a C+ in that class. Not my finest work, but I didn't fail, and I also didn't give up, because she pushed me to keep going.

My favorite class at CDH was Acting I. This class gave me some of my favorite high school memories. I never thought of myself as an actress, but this class wasn't about acting for me. It was about finding inner confidence. Our teacher (former theater instructor Signe Albertson) was so supportive and even wrote me a beautiful letter at the end of the year, which I still have. This class was a total game changer for me and how I viewed myself.

I'm sure it comes as no surprise that Oprah Winfrey is my professional hero. I have always considered Oprah to be a remarkable woman long before I started working for Harpo. I am in complete awe of what she has accomplished, especially given her upbringing. She uses her large platform to inform and change the world for the better. The love that she pours into her work and her love for her viewers is contagious and inspiring.

The biggest challenges facing an audience coordinator are the expectations from the audience. We are the first and last people the audience members see. We represent Oprah, and we strive to make sure every person who walks through the door feels as if they are her special guest. We do our best to make their visit to our studio a very memorable experience. The best moment for our audience is when Oprah first walks on stage. I always stay for those first few moments, because the energy of their cheers is electrifying.

The best things about my job are the people and the experiences I have had. I have met celebrities, U.S. presidents, and, of course, some of the best people in the industry—my co-workers. I have also traveled with the show to the Academy Awards (twice); Sydney, Australia; New York City; Toronto; Houston; St. Louis; Los Angeles; and Dallas. Not only did I get to go to those places, but I booked the audiences for those shows! I even booked more than 13,000 people for our big finale shows at the United Center (in Chicago) in May 2011.

The Oprah Winfrey Show has ended. We are now in our third year on OWN, and our tapings are fewer. (Launching this network) has been quite a mountain to climb! But I am committed to helping grow this network, and I feel the possibilities are endless!

I was dabbling in news reporting before going to the production side of television, but I don't think I would still be in news reporting if I didn't have this job. I love the excitement and challenges of television, and sometimes I think about starting my own casting company. I have done some freelance work, and I love working with clients and the challenges of coordinating successful events. It's exhilarating.

I live by Lake Michigan, so I love to go boating, play tennis and beach volleyball, and lay in the sun. There are always festivals or concerts happening somewhere, too. Chicago reminds me so much of Minnesota, but on a larger scale. The people here are genuine and sweet, everything is nearby, and we have a lake! Chicago is my home.

This experience was a precursor to what would become her life's passion: ministering to the poor and marginalized. She earned her law degree in 1986 from William Mitchell College of Law and spent many years as the executive director with the Neighborhood Justice Center, a nonprofit, community-based law office that provides criminal defense services to low-income persons. She has been recognized by William Mitchell as one of the "100 Alumni Who Have Made a Difference." Dr. Terrance '56 and Jacqueline Girard Capistrant '57
Eugene and Mary Frey Community Award

Named in recognition of the tremendous commitment that Eugene and Mary Frey have demonstrated to Cretin-Derham Hall and to our larger community in numerous ways. The recipient of this award is recognized for reflecting the mission and values of Cretin-Derham Hall through involvement with CDH and other community interests.

Dr. Terrance '56 and Jacqueline Girard Capistrant '57 have enjoyed a deep and abiding partnership for more than 53 years. Terry founded Neurological Associates of St. Paul in 1978. He retired from practice in 1998. Jacque studied art and design at St. Catherine's College and Colorado College. She worked as freelance interior designer and managed a women's apparel store while she simultaneously took on primary responsibility for raising their three sons. She continues to be an active volunteer with a host of local nonprofits. In 1998, at the age of 58, Terry diagnosed himself with Parkinson's disease. Despite the disease, he has led an active life in retirement. In 2005, the Capistrants partnered with the HealthEast Foundation and founded the Capistrant Center for Parkinson's and Movement Disorders at Bethesda Hospital, a full service nonprofit center staffed with highly-trained medical experts and therapists providing treatment, education and unique therapy options. In addition to volunteering expertise at the Center, Terry, Jacque and their family have contributed more than 15,000 volunteer hours through their participation in and development of fundraising events that have raised more than a half million dollars in private donations to help secure the future of the Center.

Michael '63 and Jane Swenson
Monsignor Ambrose V. Hayden Legacy Award

Recognizing individuals whose spirit and energy reflect an understanding of the need to preserve the past and provide for future generations.

Michael '63 and Jane Swenson, proud parents of Abby, John '06 and Jeff '06, have been actively involved at Cretin-Derham Hall on many levels for the past decade. Mike began his career in real estate by purchasing and managing several apartment buildings in St. Paul. Later, he worked as a property manager for Kraus Anderson and the Klodt Company. Jane earned a nursing degree from St. Olaf College and practiced nursing for several years. Presently, she dedicates her time to family and several local organizations, including Cretin-Derham Hall, Visitation School, and Mount Calvary Lutheran Church. In 1988, Mike and Jane founded Michael Development, a real estate development company, which owns and manages apartment complexes, shopping centers and office buildings. Mike was the very first recipient of the Skipper Slawik Foundation Scholarship. This distinction holds special meaning for him as he and Skipper were close childhood friends prior to Skipper's untimely death in a boating accident. This scholarship aid made it possible for Mike to attend Cretin High School, for which he is ever grateful. Inspired by the generosity of the Slawik Foundation, Mike and Jane generously fund two annual scholarships for students at Cretin-Derham Hall.

Fr. Lawrence Hubbard '60
The St. DeLaSalle Award

In 1970, he was asked to join Fr. Ray Monsour at a mission in Venezuela. For 25 years, Fr. Hubbard served the people of Venezuela with great love and humility. In 1995, with characteristic humility, Fr. Hubbard, believing it was time to pass the baton to another priest, returned to the Twin Cities to serve the Hispanic community in a number of capacities, including service at St. Stephen's, Minneapolis; Incarnation, Minneapolis; and Our Lady of Guadalupe, St. Paul. Dearly loved by the local Hispanic community, Fr. Hubbard is "plugged-in as needed," he says, in our local Church. Additionally, he celebrates morning Mass twice a month in the Pax Christi Chapel at Cretin-Derham Hall.

Mining Minecraft

When he was three-years-old, Tony Bruess was fascinated with electronics, particularly the cords that powered them, which he referred to as “hoses.” His parents, Brian and Carol, bought the family’s first computer when Tony was a 4th grader at Highland Catholic. By the time he entered 6th grade, Tony was creating websites for friends and family, as well as local non-profits. As a 7th grader, he was writing computer code. One year later, he was designing complex websites and running servers. Now, as a CDH senior, he is CEO of Overcast Network. Along with his small team of developers, managers, and administrators, he designs and runs servers that attract 4 to 5 million page views a month from users who love the game Minecraft.

Minecraft, created by a Swedish programmer in 2009, allows players to construct a 3-D world out of cubes that look a little bit like Legos. From there, the game expands to allow players to further build, explore and defend their world. Players are free to play the game in their own style and at their own pace, which makes it suitable for kids as young as four-years-old.

A gaming enthusiast himself, Tony was dismayed that his favorite Minecraft server was only available when the server-host was online. Out of disappointment grew his business idea and plan: create servers that would enable his favorite game to be played anytime, day or night. Thousands of players now subscribe to the Overcast

Network (oc.tc). To the many millions of Minecraft fans, “Overcast” has become a household name.

Minecraft’s popularity has increased dramatically in the past few years. Since 2011, more than 30 million copies of Minecraft have been sold. In fact, some schools even use Minecraft to promote creativity, building, exploration, and teamwork. “On our servers there are about 100,000 unique Minecraft players each week,” says Tony, “and 1,000 to 2,000 people are playing at any given time.”

In November, thousands of Minecraft fans, including Tony and his Overcast team, descended on Orlando, FL, for a conference called “Minecon 2013.” The sold-out event included panel discussions, one of which was featured Tony as the lead presenter and organizer. He fielded questions from the more than 400 convention-goers while another 20,000 participants watched simultaneously via live stream.

Next year Tony is hoping to attend either Stanford University or Santa Clara University, both in California and both in the heart of Silicon Valley. Not surprisingly, he plans to major in computer science. And about his post-college goals? “I may work for an existing company, like Google, or start my own company like I did with Overcast,” says Tony. “I look forward to the awesome opportunities ahead.”

CDH FINISHES FIRST ON GIVE TO THE MAX DAY!

Cretin-Derham Hall won the top prize of $10,000 in the annual Give to the Max Day in Minnesota. GiveMN.org, the sponsor of the event, offered prize money to the top three nonprofits that raised the most money during the 24-hour period on November 14, 2013. CDH received online donations from 839 donors totaling $548,192!

The purpose of the event is to encourage donations to schools and nonprofits in an effort to improve the quality of life for all Minnesotans. More than 52,000 people donated $17,145,280 to 4,437 organizations statewide.

"The Cretin-Derham Hall community, in addition to loving a challenge, is also committed to ensuring that our school can continue to provide an excellent Catholic education to young people for generations to come," said President Dick Engler. "We are sincerely grateful to everyone who showed their support for CDH on Give to the Max Day."

Where Are They Now?

Lynn Strand served at Derham Hall as a teacher, coach and athletic director beginning in 1976, and stayed on at the newly-merged Cretin-Derham Hall through 1989. At Derham Hall and at CDH, Lynn coached gymnastics, cross country, track and field, volleyball and softball. She joined the St. Paul Public School District in 1989 and is currently a teacher and co-athletic director in charge of girls sports at Johnson High School. She also coaches gymnastics and girls golf at Johnson. She earned her undergraduate degree in physical education/health/coaching from Gustavus Adolphus College and a master's degree from St. Mary's University.

She came to Derham Hall because the idea of an all-girls school was interesting. "There were few schools in the area with this option," she said, "and I liked the fact that they had an active sports program."

Her most memorable experience was in 1981 when the gymnastics team went to State and placed 3rd. "This was really a special group of young women that I had the privilege to work with," she says.

When not working, she says she spends her free time on the golf course and at her family's lake home enjoying the outdoors and doing a little fishing.

"Derham Hall gave me my start in teaching and coaching," says Lynn, who was inducted into the Derham Hall Athletic Hall of Fame in December 2012. "I had many opportunities to work with many outstanding young women with enormous talents. It was a fantastic place to work."

Lynn Strand can be reached at lynn.strand@spps.org.
